

$10 million facilities upgrade at Aberfoyle Park High School

Artistic impression of the new landscaped laneway. This concept illustration is not an exact representation of the upgrade.

Planning is underway at Aberfoyle Park High School as the first stage of their Building Better Schools upgrade.

A performing arts centre is proposed to provide music teaching and practice spaces for large performances, along with a new commercial kitchen and café-style space for vocational training.

Refurbishments are planned for the existing senior centre and two-storey maths, english and humanities buildings, including modifications to balconies to provide indoor/outdoor learning areas.

The plans also propose to build on the school's many and varied outdoor green spaces by creating flexible, interconnected indoor/outdoor learning areas. This includes a proposal for a landscaped promenade connecting learning areas with shelters, seating and recreation spaces, and a second landscaped laneway connecting the performing arts centre and senior centre.

These initial plans are subject to further planning and may change.

Building Better Schools for South Australian students

South Australian students deserve a world-class education in exceptional facilities to help prepare them for the jobs of tomorrow.

To assist with this, we are investing $692 million to improve, refurbish or expand capacity at 91 public schools through the Building Better Schools Program, bringing the total investment over the past 4 years to more than $1 billion.

The upgrades will look different in every school and may include:

- the removal of old relocatable or modular classrooms
- creation of new buildings for schools with growing student numbers
- the refurbishment of classrooms and buildings, transforming them into modern learning areas
- landscaping and upgrades of the street frontage.

Around 67,000 students across the state will benefit with around 1 in 5 schools having their facilities upgraded.

The Building Better Schools program is part of South Australia's Public Education Action Plan to support children and their public school to benefit South Australia's future.
